Transactional Services

A "Key" visual change will be with a transactional service entry that is split into multiple rows. The main commodity is now on the main row along with the fuel and fuel ratio for this commodity. Any additional commodity types that are required for this service are then shown below the main commodity (Overrun, for example).

In the new design, there are only three columns which make it easier to keep track of commodity, fuel and fuel ratios, and the commodity types are clearly labelled on the rows themselves.

| Location(s) | Account on Other Pipeline | SC? | Service Usage | Commodity | Fuel | Fuel Ratio |     |
|-------------|---------------------------|-----|---------------|-----------|------|------------|-----|
| I           |                           |     | Normal        |           |      |            | Add |

Overrun would show here if applicable

Floating Navigation Bar

The floating navigation bar has been updated to take advantage of some newer features supported by Internet Explorer 7+. The new navigation bar is leveraging elements that are supported in Internet Explorer 7+; therefore clients who are still using Internet Explorer 6 will not be able to make the navigation bar float, without upgrading to IE 7.
